Factual Basis: In April 2023, Du Wors sought and obtained pro hac vice admission in Delaware Superior Court. His certification represented that he was not the subject of pending disciplinary proceedings in another jurisdiction. This statement was false: disciplinary proceedings were pending against Du Wors in Washington at that time. Du Wors failed to correct the false certification and subsequently participated in mediation of the Delaware Superior Court case while suspended from practice in Washington.<sup>11</sup>

Procedural History:

April 2023	Du Wors admitted pro hac vice to Delaware Superior Court

July 28, 2025	ODC issues press release

Du Wors did not answer the Petition for Discipline. Pursuant to Delaware Lawyers' Rule of Disciplinary Procedure 9(d)(2), all allegations and charges were deemed admitted. Du Wors filed objections to the Board's Report with the Delaware Supreme Court, but the Court upheld the Board's recommendations.<sup>12</sup>

According to the Law.com report, Du Wors disputed the characterization of the sanction as "disbarment," arguing the term is inapplicable to an attorney who appeared pro hac vice and was not a licensed member of Delaware's bar. Du Wors indicated plans to challenge the decision directly and in federal court.<sup>13</sup>
